Hello, and welcome ...

One of the things we try to do here continually is to “move the camera” closer and closer to the action. In this time of special effects and Stadium Sized Events, leave it to theatre to bridge the delicate area of both magic and emotional reality. So it is especially apt that our current two projects are both intimate and original.

_Himself and Nora_ brings Associate Artist Joe Hardy back into play with a musical he has personally sponsored and coddled from its infancy, a stunningly heartfelt examination of the role passion and love can play in the creative landscape. The relationship between Nora Barnacle and the writer who would become James Joyce is the touchstone spun into thrilling relief with music and lyrics, against a canvas of originality not often experienced in the musical theatre. Broadway director/ choreographer Jeff Calhoun joins Joe Hardy in creating this evening of ravishing music and high energy passion.

And in the Cassius Carter, Rick Seer, who has become something of a miniaturist with his delicate direction of subtle and persuasive performances, takes on one of the most intimate plays we’ve attempted — _Vincent in Brixton_ — the up-close exploration of a soon-to-be-great artist, both arrested and momentarily side-tracked by the unlikely appearance of love in an unlooked for place. You can almost breathe with the participants as they shed one after another layer of resistance to achieve the intimacy everyone seeks and too few ever find.

We are a theatre that travels inside as well as out, that delights in turning delicate prisms into the light as well as releasing the classic passions. Here in a stunning tandem, perhaps we have the opportunity to once more surprise you. It’s indeed a pleasure to do so.

What an exciting time to be at The Old Globe. We recently took home an unprecedented 20 awards at the annual San Diego Critics Circle “Craig Noel” Awards ceremony, with many nods for our productions of _Dirty Rotten Scoundrels, Don Juan_, and many others. We’re also getting ready to celebrate our 70th Anniversary season with the 2005 Summer Shakespeare Festival, as well as the 90th birthday of Founding Director Craig Noel in August. And just a few weeks ago, we announced a brand new member of our artistic team: Jerry Patch, who will serve as Resident Artistic Director, and will work with Jack and myself on seasonal planning and day-to-day artistic operations. Jerry has been a member of the acclaimed artistic staff of the Tony Award®- winning South Coast Repertory for nearly 30 years, where he coordinated the development of 150 new plays, including three Pulitzer Prize winners and numerous works by such playwrights at Richard Greenberg and Donald Margulies, among others. His passion and expertise in the field make him the ideal choice for this new position, and his commitment to new work will add to the Globe’s national reputation as a creative haven for the country’s foremost theatre artists.

Speaking of new work, we couldn’t be more delighted about this current round of plays, including the Olivier Award-winning _Vincent in Brixton_, which examines an early period in the life of Vincent Van Gogh, and the luminous world-premiere musical _Himself and Nora_, which shines a light on one of literature’s most celebrated writers, James Joyce, and his relationship with his muse and lifelong love Nora Barnacle.

As we launch _Himself and Nora_, another Globe-born world premier musical, _Dirty Rotten Scoundrels_, is making its Broadway debut. Producing these ambitious new works is only possible through the generosity of our patrons and donors. Ticket sales still only cover 50% of operating costs, and we count on your support to help us sustain the high standards of production you’ve come to expect from the Globe. We hope you will continue to support us throughout the year, and join us in celebration of our many artistic milestones in 2005!

“You were a lion in the night with your serio comic recitation. And you looked the part.” — James Joyce, Ulysses

Himself and Nora tells of the turbulent life and enduring love of Ireland’s brilliant and controversial writer James Joyce and his long-time muse and, finally, his wife, Nora Barnacle. It begins with Joyce’s birth and proceeds through glimpses of his early years, including his father’s strong belief in a man standing on his own, even against the powerful Catholic church; of his mother’s death and his first meeting with Nora. Joyce was a university educated writer, and Nora a chambermaid, but their shared passion was powerful and lasting. Joyce and Nora begin a life together in exile. In Italy, Joyce teaches English, begins his writing career, is told of the eye disease that will plague his life, and laments the lack of interest in his work. Nora struggles with poverty, Joyce’s drinking, and has two children, Giorgio and Lucia. Joyce returns briefly to Ireland to drink and carouse with his father, hoping to have his work published, but finds that, in Ireland, it is thought to be obscene and demeaning. Back in Italy, his eyes grow worse, and a doctor orders surgery, forbidding drink and writing. Good fortune arrives when the renowned writer Ezra Pound arranges for the Joyce family to be brought to Paris, all expenses paid, to allow Joyce to write in peace. But his work is published only in excerpts. Word of Joyce’s talent is spreading and leading international writers to line up on opposite sides for and against his work. At last Ulysses is published by Sylvia Beach of Shakespeare and Co. and success is his. But all is not well at home, where Giorgio has grown into a drunkard, Lucia is showing signs of schizophrenia. Then Nora leaves him when he refuses once more to marry her. He relents, and they are married joyously. Word comes from America that the ban on Ulysses has been lifted. The rejoicing is brief as Joyce’s blindness begins to advance and Lucia is sent to a mental hospital. Rumblings of war surround them and they escape to Zurich where Joyce sickness and dies in Nora’s loving arms. The play concludes with a jubilant Irish wake for Joyce, where he appears as a joyful and indomitable spirit to join in the celebration of his life.

“Eras un león en la noche con tu recitado serio cómico, y lucías ser el personaje.” — James Joyce, Ulysses

Himself and Nora nos cuenta la turbulenta vida y duradera relación del brillante y controversio escritor de Irlanda, James Joyce, y su musa de toda la vida, Nora Barnacle, quien finalmente fue su esposa. Comienza con el nacimiento de Joyce y procede dándonos pequeños datos de su niñez, incluyendo la creencia de su padre de que un hombre debía ser independiente y defendirse solo, aún hasta en contra del mismo poder de la iglesia católica. Nos habla de la muerte de su madre y cuando conoció por primera vez a Nora, con quien compartió una fuerte y duradera pasión. Joyce y Nora empezan una vida juntos en el exilio. Joyce es maestro de inglés en Italia, en donde emprende su carrera de escritor y nos cuenta de una enfermedad de los ojos que plaga su vida, y lamenta la falta de interés en su obra. Nora batalla con la pobreza, el alcoholismo de Joyce y además tiene dos hijos, Giorgio y Lucia. Joyce vuelve a Irlanda a beber y parrandear con su padre esperando poder publicar su obra, pero se cuenta que en Irlanda se entiende como obsceno y denigrante. Su vista continúa a empeorar en Italia, y un médico ordena que se opere y le prohíbe beber y escribir. Su suerte cambia cuando el reconocido escritor Ezra Pound hace arreglos para que Joyce y su familia vayan a Paris con todos los gastos pagados, permitiéndole a Joyce poder escribir en absoluta paz. Su obra solamente se publica en pasajes. Su fama empieza a circular mundialmente y los grandes escritores internacionales forman bandos en pro y contra de su obra. Finalmente Ulysses es publicado por Sylvia Beach de Shakespeare and Co. y el éxito le pertenece. Pero en casa no todo se encuentra bien. Giorgio es un borracho, a Lucia se le empiezan a ver rasgos de esquizofrenia y Nora lo abandona cuando una vez más él se niega a casarse con ella. Finalmente él se enterece y se casa con ella. Se sabe por diferentes fuentes de información que en América se ha terminado la poscripción de Ulysses. El alboroto no es duradero ya que la ceguera de Joyce comienza a avanzar y Lucia es internada en un manicomio. El retumbo de la guerra los rodea y se escapan a Zurich, en donde Joyce se enferma y muere en los amorosos brazos de Nora. La obra concluye con un alegre velorio en honor de Joyce en donde aparece él como un regocijante e indomito espíritu participando en la celebración de su vida.

Thank you for joining us today for one of our outstanding productions of Season 04/05.

As you may already be aware, 2005 is a year for many celebrations at the Globe. The theatre enjoys its 70th Anniversary and to mark this special occasion we are currently planning a community-wide Open House event on Saturday, June 18th. We certainly hope you will come and join the fun.

Founding Director Craig Noel – the man who started it all – will celebrate his 90th birthday this year as well. We’ve commissioned internationally-renowned sculptor Lark Dimond Cates to create a bust in Craig’s likeness, and we’ll unveil the sculpture on Craig’s Birthday, August 25th, and toast the man who brought life to San Diego’s theatre scene.

Our beloved Globe Guilders, the theatre’s amazing auxiliary, will also enjoy a milestone in 2005, observing their Golden Anniversary of providing invaluable service to the hearts and souls of the Company. On behalf of the Theatre, I salute the Guilders for their tremendous contribution to the Globe, its artists and actors.

To be sure, this year is filled with many celebrations, and for a theatre that is 70 years old, it remains young at heart and ever-vital to the American Theatre landscape. Enjoy the show!

SHEILA WALSH — Book and Lyrics

I wanted to write a love story. The fact that the intellectual James Joyce chose the chambermaid Nora Barnacle as his partner for life fascinated me. Why Nora of all women? When I read that at his death she said, “Oh, Jim, you’re so beautiful,” I knew I had my love story. So I began writing an imagined (not rigid, biographical) story of James and Nora. I created scenes and dialogue that would explore the core of the bond that kept them sweethearts for life. Although Joyce left Ireland, it was all he wrote of, and he needed Nora to serve as his portable Ireland. Her voice, her words, anchored and sustained the man who became the most famous, unread writer of the twentieth century. Because Joyce’s language is musical, and he and Nora great lovers of music, I knew the play needed music. Fortunately, the composer and lyricist Jonathan Brielle shared my enthusiasm for the Joyce story. Together we created several original songs. After a production of the play, we realized the few songs weren’t enough, the piece cried out to be a musical. In stepped director Joe Hardy. With Joe’s guidance we rethought and restructured the play into a full-fledged musical. And with the participation of Jeff Calhoun and Tobin Ost, we discovered how the piece would move and look. The thing we’ve all come to believe is — indeed Joyce and Nora did live a great love story.

JONATHAN BRIELLE — Music, Lyrics, Orchestrations

John Joyce says “Love, laughter and song,” lead to a life worth living. The specific language Sheila used to create the world of James and Nora Joyce led me to believe this was a musical I wanted to write. After all, Joyce was the most famous unread writer of the 20th century whose lyrical words were inspired by an earthy, sexy chambermaid from Galway. Their love gave him the strength to stand up against censorship and write from his heart. Music and lyrics convey that by heightening emotion. After four years of working together, Joe Hardy’s insight enabled us to complete the musical by focusing on the magnificent love story of two people who just happen to be James and Nora. Adding Jeff Calhoun’s moving vision with Tobin Ost’s physicalization of their love amplifies our expectations of a love story for everyone. As we now begin our production with the help of Jack O’Brien, Lou Spisto and all the people here at The Old Globe, I am truly thankful for such wonderful collaborators and actors.

INSPIRATION FOR WORKING ON

Himself and Nora.

JOSEPH HARDY — Director

I was inspired by love. Sheila Walsh’s wish to write about a man and a woman in love so deeply that it sustained them their whole lives intrigued me simply because there are so few such subjects treated today. The fact that she chose James Joyce and Nora Barnacle to be the protagonists by whom we imagined this story further intrigued me. The fact that Jonathan Brielle wanted to write music to embellish such a tale was further impetus. When I suggested that the scope and power of James and Nora’s love for each other could support, and in fact demanded, the musical form and they agreed, I was hooked. Our work together has proven this to be true. Our collaboration is, and has been, one of the fullest and happiness of my career.

Creating a work about a great love on Sheila and Jonathan’s terms has been fascinating. Now, the result has come to the life it was intended for, thanks to Jack O’Brien and Lou Spisto and The Old Globe. And the addition of the fourth collaborator, Jeff Calhoun, has been further inspiration. He has brought a new eye, and a new love of the work to the table, and turned the trio into a quartet playing harmonious music to fill the theatre with love — love of the work, love of the theatre, and the love of James Joyce and Nora Barnacle.

JEFF CALHOUN — Director

The inspiration to work on Himself and Nora began with a phone call from Jack O’Brien. The next day the script and CD arrived at my apartment. The expectations a director has when reading new material almost always exceeds the reality. However, this time was very different. I so wanted to be part of a show as original as Himself and Nora, I was unfazed that a director was already attached to the project. The next step was to meet that director, the renowned Joe Hardy. Joe and I immediately understood one another and I knew that time with him would be well spent given his wealth of experience in the theatre. But what would my role be? Joe arranged a meeting with Sheila and Jonathan, and I soon realized that they were were as kind and friendly as they were talented. I immediately felt as though we were family. During this meeting Joe brought me into his study and asked me to co-direct the show with him. Two directors could be a disastrous combination, but instead a glorious collaboration and friendship ensued. With Joe’s blessing I called in Tobin Ost and Michael Gilliam, two of my favorite designers, and the creative team was now complete. Bringing Himself and Nora to fruition was a collaborative experience that exceeded my already high expectations.

Her plays include: Within the Year, Tea with Mommy and Jack, Two Sides of the Story (an evening of monologues), O, the Days!, The Suburbs of Her Mind (about her sister’s death from Creutzfeldt- Jacob Disease, a form of Mad Cow disease), Bosoms on Table and Caught. Her award-winning one-act play, Molly and James, was the seed for the play Himself, and the musical Himself and Nora evolved from this piece. Everyone in Carolyn Yorston’s family has always adored the theatre. As a young girl, Carolyn remembers watching her father acting in plays he wrote and sometimes directed. As a mother, she recalls seeing tears roll down her teenage son’s face when he learned that the Old Globe Theatre had burned down. As a grandmother, she delights in memories of taking her grandchildren to see the Globe’s production of Dr. Seuss’ How the Grinch Stole Christmas.

It was always a given, Carolyn says, that part of her estate would be shared with the Globe. “My children know that after I go to heaven, I still want to support heaven on earth – The Old Globe – in Balboa Park. I want those romantic, memorable evenings of live theatre that we’ve all enjoyed to live in perpetuity.”

Many thoughtful friends are helping to secure The Old Globe’s future by leaving gifts in their wills and estate plans. We hope you might also be so moved to join them in helping to sustain the theatrical excellence of The Old Globe for years to come. We’d love to hear from you, so that we might recognize your generosity and thoughtfulness through membership in the Craig Noel League, our planned giving society.

For information on leaving a lasting gift to The Old Globe, please contact Planned Giving Officer Brad Ballard at (619) 231-1941 x2309 or via e-mail at plannedgiving@TheOldGlobe.org.

› The Globe’s unrivaled VIP ticketing
› Invitations to special events
› Admission to the Lipinsky Family Suite, VIP Valet Parking and more

For more information on giving to the Globe, please call (619) 231-1941 x2305 or go to www.TheOldGlobe.org and join the party!
The Old Globe’s ability to maintain the highest standard of excellence, while keeping ticket prices affordable, is due in large part to the annual financial support of nearly 3,500 individuals, businesses, foundations and government agencies. Please join us in giving a warm thanks and recognition to these leaders who have made tonight and many other performances possible. The Old Globe appreciates the support of those who have stepped into the spotlight:

Louis G. Spisto
Executive Director

Louis G. Spisto has been Executive Director of The Old Globe since October, 2002. During his tenure, Spisto spearheaded the return of the Globe’s acclaimed Shakespeare Repertory Season and produced several world-premiere plays and musicals, including the current Broadway musical Dirty Rotten Scoundrels. During the past two seasons, the organization has grown its subscription audience an unprecedented amount, countering a trend in the non-profit theatre industry and resulting in the highest level of attendance in over a decade. Prior to coming to the Globe, Spisto served as Executive Director of American Ballet Theatre in New York City. While there, he increased ticket income and annual contributions for the organization by nearly 20 percent. He also tripled the Ballet’s touring weeks and the resources devoted to education and training programs. Spisto has also served as the President of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, where he provided fundraising leadership and creative direction for the orchestra’s $60 million renovation project, and helped dramatically increase ticket sales while initiating several new series for the orchestra. Spisto established a reputation as a superb arts executive here in California, where he spent over ten years as the Executive Director of the Pacific Symphony Orchestra in Orange County. During his tenure there, he tripled the orchestra’s annual budget, all while eliminating a prior deficit and successfully completing the orchestra’s first endowment campaign. In addition, he established a series of innovative recording projects with Sony Classical and oversaw a number of nationally recognized commissioning projects. A strong advocate of arts education, Spisto built one of the largest and most respected music training and outreach efforts. During his career, Spisto has also served as Director of Marketing for the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra and Director of Operations and Development for the Performing Arts Center, UC Berkeley. He holds a Masters degree from the University of Wisconsin in Arts Administration and a Bachelors of Business Administration from the University of Notre Dame, and spent many years acting, directing and producing plays and musicals throughout his student days, as well as in professional summer theater.
