Hello, and welcome...

One of the things we try to do here continually is to “move the camera” closer and closer to the action. In this time of special effects and Stadium Sized Events, leave it to theatre to bridge the delicate area of both magic and emotional reality. So it is especially apt that our current two projects are both intimate and original.

_Himself and Nora_ brings Associate Artist Joe Hardy back into play with a musical he has personally sponsored and coddled from its infancy, a stunningly heartfelt examination of the role passion and love can play in the creative landscape. The relationship between Nora Barnacle and the writer who would become James Joyce is the touchstone spun into thrilling relief with music and lyrics, against a canvas of originality not often experienced in the musical theatre. Broadway director/choreographer Jeff Calhoun joins Joe Hardy in creating this evening of ravishing music and high energy passion.

And in the Cassius Carter, Richard Seer, who has become something of a miniaturist with his delicate direction of subtle and persuasive performances, takes on one of the most intimate plays we’ve attempted — _Vincent in Brixton_ — the up-close exploration of a soon-to-be-great artist, both arrested and momentarily side-tracked by the unlikely appearance of love in an unlooked for place. You can almost breathe with the participants as they shed one after another layer of resistance to achieve the intimacy everyone seeks and too few ever find.

We are a theatre that travels inside as well as out, that delights in turning delicate prisms into the light as well as releasing the classic passions. Here in a stunning tandem, perhaps we have the opportunity to once more surprise you. It’s indeed a pleasure to do so.

Jack O’Brien
Artistic Director

What an exciting time to be at The Old Globe. We recently took home an unprecedented 20 awards at the annual San Diego Critics Circle “Craig Noel” Awards ceremony, with many nods for our productions of _Dirty Rotten Scoundrels, Don Juan_, and many others. We’re also getting ready to celebrate our 70th Anniversary season with the 2005 Summer Shakespeare Festival, as well as the 90th birthday of Founding Director Craig Noel in August. And just a few weeks ago, we announced a brand new member of our artistic team: Jerry Patch, who will serve as Resident Artistic Director, and will work with Jack and myself on seasonal planning and day-to-day artistic operations. Jerry has been a member of the acclaimed artistic staff of the Tony Award®-winning South Coast Repertory for nearly 30 years, where he coordinated the development of 150 new plays, including three Pulitzer Prize winners and numerous works by such playwrights as Richard Greenberg and Donald Margulies, among others. His passion and expertise in the field make him the ideal choice for this new position, and his commitment to new work will add to the Globe’s national reputation as a creative haven for the country’s foremost theatre artists.

Speaking of new work, we couldn’t be more delighted about this current round of plays, including the Olivier Award-winning _Vincent in Brixton_, which examines an early period in the life of Vincent Van Gogh, and the luminous world-premiere musical _Himself and Nora_, which shines a light on one of literature’s most celebrated writers, James Joyce, and his relationship with his muse and lifelong love Nora Barnacle.

As we launch _Himself and Nora_, another Globe-born world premiere musical, _Dirty Rotten Scoundrels_, is making its Broadway debut. Producing these ambitious new works is only possible through the generosity of our patrons and donors. Ticket sales still only cover 50% of operating costs, and we count on your support to help us sustain the high standards of production you’ve come to expect from the Globe. We hope you will continue to support us throughout the year, and join us in celebration of our many artistic milestones in 2005!

Mary Beth Adderley and Richard Wright

A native of La Jolla, Mary Beth Adderley has fond memories of The Old Globe. Her grandfather, Guy Fleming, shared his love of Balboa Park with Mary Beth when she was growing up.

Mary Beth recently returned home to La Jolla with her daughter Elizabeth. She has become active on The Old Globe Board of Directors, and also serves on the Vanderbilt Board of Trust and the Board of South Coast Repertory Theatre. She was recently wed to Richard Wright, a long-time San Diegan, who is also a supporter of the Globe.

The Old Globe Board of Directors, artists and audiences appreciate the generosity of Mary Beth Adderley and Richard Wright, and we are very pleased to recognize their support as sponsors of Vincent in Brixton.
Thank you for joining us today for one of our outstanding productions of Season 04/05.

As you may already be aware, 2005 is a year for many celebrations at the Globe. The theatre enjoys its 70th Anniversary and to mark this special occasion we are currently planning a community-wide Open House event on Saturday, June 18th. We certainly hope you will come and join the fun.

Founding Director Craig Noel – the man who started it all – will celebrate his 90th birthday this year as well. We’ve commissioned internationally-renowned sculptor Lark Dimond Gates to create a bust in Craig’s likeness, and we’ll unveil the sculpture on Craig’s Birthday, August 25th, and toast the man who brought life to San Diego’s theatre scene.

Our beloved Globe Guilders, the theatre’s amazing auxiliary, will also enjoy a milestone in 2005, observing their Golden Anniversary of providing invaluable service to the hearts and souls of the Company. On behalf of the Theatre, I salute the Guilders for their tremendous contribution to the Globe, its artists and actors.

To be sure, this year is filled with many celebrations, and for a theatre that is 70 years old, it remains young at heart and ever-vital to the American Theatre landscape. Enjoy the show!

NEXT UP IN THE GLOBE THEATRE

By George Bernard Shaw
Directed by Stephen Wadsworth

May 7 - June 12, 2005

Whoever thought a fortune in underwear would cause so much bewilderment? In Shaw’s classic Misalliance, the daughter of a newly-rich undergarment mogul is fed up with the stuffy conventions of Victorian morality and her long-winded, philandering father. When a dashing aviator crashes onto the scene — quite literally — it’s a question of who will wind up with whom in this hilarious examination of marriage, socialism, and the “new woman.” Nobel Prize-winning author George Bernard Shaw is one of the greatest playwrights of the 20th century and Misalliance is one of his greatest triumphs.

Nicola Barranger interviews Nicholas Wright about his play Vincent in Brixton.

NICHOLAS WRIGHT: Originally I was just very, very intrigued by the fact that [van Gogh] lived here. It’s one of those odd facts. It’s very hard to assimilate because it’s so much the opposite of what you’d expect. We think of Vincent so much as the painter of sunny skies and sunflowers and vivid Mediterranean colours. You don’t connect him with the world of sooty streets and bicycles clips and clanking milk bottles, and I found that very intriguing. That was just my way in, my starting point. It’s not what I’ve dwelt on, it’s what got me going in the first place.

NICOLA BARRANGER: But this is factual. Vincent really did live in Brixton, didn’t he?

WRIGHT: Oh yes, yes he did, from 1873 to 1876, from the age of 20. He was working for the family firm, an art dealer firm which had a London branch in Covent Garden. It was based in the Hague. And he’d been working in the Hague. He worked very respectfully, bought a top hat, had a suit, he went for long walks all the time, went to church every Sunday. His English was very good; he read everything by Dickens, everything by Shakespeare. He loved George Elliot, Mrs. Gaskell. He never went to the theatre, (as far as I know). In fact I’m sure he never went to the theatre, because he would have said so in his letters to his younger brother Theo, which is how we know about most of it.

BARRANGER: He comes across in your play as very gawkish, very tactless.

WRIGHT: Well he was always very tactless, he was a country boy — brought up in a small country parish — not at all sophisticated in any way. He didn’t have (to start with) any visionary sense that you associate with him. And he didn’t have any particular desire to paint or draw. If you read his letters, you can see that he was enormously talented but you could as well believe that he was going to be a very famous writer.

BARRANGER: There is a very strong suggestion in your play that if he hadn’t come to Brixton, hadn’t stayed with Mrs. Loyer and her other tenants, that he may not have become a painter at all.

WRIGHT: Well who knows if things were really like I’ve dramatized them. But I think it’s true that if he hadn’t had stayed in England, if he hadn’t the experience of working class life in London, of British politics, of the very English idea which came from Ruskin and William Morris of art having social significance and being at its greatest in scenes from working life, I think it’s very possible his work would have taken a different turn, yes. Also he learned Shakespeare — Dickens was also very important for him. He was very influenced by illustrations of Dickens and the scenes of hardship of poverty and working life that he found in Dickens. All those things were things that he got in London.

BARRANGER: I was wondering how many picture references I was picking out — the chair, the boots, the poppies, Arles. Was that intentional?

WRIGHT: (Pause) Yes (laughs) completely intentional. Look, it doesn’t matter if nobody gets them. It really makes no difference to your enjoyment of the play. But if you do pick up references there are one or two others. I think it’s a bit of a plus, a bit of an interest.

BARRANGER: Is there also a suggestion that here in Brixton, Vincent’s artistic awakening coincides with his sexual awakening?

— Lucius Furius, Genius Ignored, Ch. 7

Vincent van Gogh at age 19.

Van Gogh was an indisputable genius, utterly, indisputably ignored. He created hundreds of bold, brilliant paintings; only one was sold during his lifetime.

— Vincent van Gogh: A Tortured Genius

And yet – on May 15, 1990, Van Gogh’s Portrait of Dr. Gachet was sold at a Christie’s auction for $82.5 million, the highest price ever paid for a painting. During his lifetime Van Gogh not only endured lack of acceptance for his artistry, but repeated failure in his early attempts at other careers in art dealership and religious ministry, disastrous outcomes in his relationships with women, whom he idolized obsessively, and increasing bouts of violent insanity which plagued his most creative years.

The young Vincent van Gogh in Nicholas Wright’s Vincent in Brixton is impulsive, passionate, naïve, loving and awkward, but the seeds of the later artistic genius, the personal misery culminating in suicide at the age of 37, and the posthumous fame, honor, and vast fortune, could not have been predicted at that time.

Vincent Willem van Gogh was born March 30, 1853, the son of Theodorus van Gogh, a Dutch Reformed pastor and Anna Carbentus van Gogh, who drew and painted wildflowers as a hobby. He was born a year to the day after the still birth of the first van Gogh child, a boy, also named Vincent, a fact which is said to have haunted him in later years. The family, involved in the business of art dealership, was steeped in the harshly restrictive morals of the Dutch Reform religion. While Vincent’s attempts at careers in both of these fields were failures, his passion of sketching and painting grew steadily during this part of his life. It was not until his devoted brother Theo took over supporting him financially that he was able to dedicate himself entirely to his artistic work.

The years of 1886 - 1887 were spent in Paris where he was deeply influenced by the work of the Impressionists, with whom he was closely associated, including Monet, Renoir, Degas, Seurat and especially Gauguin. His painting was in an experimental stage as he sought to find his own unique style. In 1888 he moved to Arles in the South of France, and the next two years saw a virtual explosion in his painting genius and his cruel insanity. Gauguin came to live and work with him in their hope of setting up an artist community. But in December van Gogh had a violent attack and accosted Gauguin with a razor, at which time he lost all reason and cut off his left earlobe, wrapped it in a newspaper and delivered it to a local prostitute. From that point on he was in and out of mental hospitals, yet he also enjoyed periods of total lucidity. In 1890 his doctor advised him to move close to his brother Theo and wife Jo and new nephew Vincent. He appeared to be the happiest he had ever been, his work was just beginning to be recognized, and he produced more than 80 paintings in the last two months of his life. But in July of that year Theo became ill, and Vincent’s mental state plummeted. On July 27, believing himself to be a burden to the family he walked out in to a golden wheat field and shot himself. He died two days later in Theo’s arms, and Theo himself died six months later. In 1889, Theo wrote to his wife, Jo:

His efforts have not been in vain, but he will probably not live to see them come to fruition, for by the time people understand what he is saying in his paintings it will be too late… I am sure he will be understood later on. It is just hard to say when.

— Diane Sinar, Dramaturgy Associate

WRIGHT: It is certainly there, and that’s just something I believe — that sexual awakening is essential to artistic awakening. I think the two almost go together. When a young person falls in love and particularly falls sexually in love, that’s the moment when the whole human race seems to be transformed and you look at things in a different way. I think it’s very hard to have the true artist’s visionary experience of the world without having gone through that sexual, loving experience.

Synopsis

Vincent in Brixton is imaginatively based on known facts from the early life of painter Vincent van Gogh, during the years 1873 to 1876. The play opens in London on a winter Sunday morning as Vincent speaks with his prospective landlady Ursula Loyer. The household includes her daughter Eugenie and lodger Sam Plowman, house painter and aspiring artist. Vincent, aged twenty, is employed as a junior art dealer and has not yet recognized his own calling as an artist. When he impulsively tells Ursula he has fallen in love with her daughter at first sight, she suggests he live elsewhere. She agrees to accept him temporarily only after he promises to keep his feelings to himself. She speaks of her hope that the gifted Sam will be accepted for a prestigious art school scholarship.

Vincent meets Sam who tells him of Ursula’s frequent bouts of depression and her insistence on wearing black fifteen years after her husband’s passing. Eugenie joins the young men in a discussion of art and Vincent becomes jealous and boastful. An attraction between Eugenie and Sam becomes apparent and the scene ends with their clandestine kiss. In the next scene it is springtime, Eugenie and Sam are away and it becomes clear they are traveling together. Vincent tosses aside his concern as he speaks with Ursula.

She is deeply depressed and they open their hearts and minds to each other as they talk of their loneliness in life. He tells her his sister Anna will be coming to England and he would like her join the others in Ursula’s home. As they speak they reveal their mutual attraction and the scene ends as they irre sistably drawn into each other’s lives. Scene three takes place in summer and Vincent and Anna have just arrived from Holland. Sam is elated with his newly awarded art school scholarship. Ursula has discarded her black dress and is bright and happy in light summer attire. Vincent has begun sketching voraciously while in Holland and has brought his sketches to show the others. Anna is scrubbing everything in sight and prying into everyone’s private life. Her cruel accusations shatter the family stability with lasting results. All is changed in the final scene, which takes place three years later, as the play comes to an unexpected conclusion.

Sinopsis en Español

Vincent en Brixton se basa imaginariamente sobre hechos conocidos de la vida de Vincent Van Gogh durante los años de 1873 a 1876. La obra empieza con una conversación entre Vincent y Ursula, su futura arrendadora. La casa también incluye a su hija Eugenie y un huésped llamado Sam Plowman, un pintor de casas y aspirante a artista. A la edad de 20 años, Vincent está empleado como curador de arte y no se declara aún como artista ya que batalla con su estricta moral habiendo sido hijo de un pastor holandés. Mientras Ursula le habla de los reglamentos de la casa, el declara que se encuentra enamorado a primera vista de su hija Eugenie. Ursula le pide entonces que se retire y piense vivir en otro lado. El le promete controlar su sentir y Ursula acepta a que permanezca en la casa temporalmente. Ella le habla de la esperanza que tiene que el dotado Sam sea aceptado y becado en un prestigioso instituto de arte. Sam y Vincent se conocen y Sam le platica de las tremendas batallas que Ursula tiene con la depresión, y que aún insiste en vestirse de luto después de 15 años de la muerte de su esposo. Eugenie platica con los muchachos acerca del arte y Vincent se pone celoso e inaguantable. La atracción entre Eugenie y Sam es claramente evidente y termina con un beso clandestino. En la siguiente escena, es primavera. Eugenie y Sam se encuentran fuera en supuestas vacaciones separadas, pero es obvio que están juntos. La reacción de Vincent es breve. Ursula se encuentra profundamente deprimida y tanto ella como Vincent abren sus corazones y expresan lo solitaria que les parece la vida. El le dice que su hermana Anna vendrá de Inglaterra y que le gustaría que se hospedara en la casa de Ursula y fuera parte del grupo. Al platicar revelan su atracción mutua, dándole fin a esta escena con un estremecido abrazo. La escena número tres toma lugar durante el verano y Vincent y Anna han llegado de Holanda. Sam se encuentra emocionado con su nueva beca. Ursula se ha desecho del vestido negro y porta un atuendo veraniego de colores brillantes y alegres. Durante su estancia en Holanda, Vincent dibuja vorazmente y ahora trae consigo varios dibujos que quiere compartir con los otros. Anna se la vive tayando todo y metiéndose en la vida de todos. Sus crueles acusaciones quieban la estabilidad familiar, con consecuencias duraderas. Todo ha cambiado en la última escena, la cual toma lugar tres años más tarde y nos lleva a una conclusión totalmente inesperada.

WHOEVER YOU ARE, WHATEVER YOUR REASON...

The Old Globe Theatre now has new seats, thanks to the generosity of many of our community members, bringing your comfort level up to that of Globe performance quality.

Installing these beautiful new seats and carpeting has been a major undertaking, and we hope you will help us defray the costs by naming one or more of the new seats. Sponsor a seat for $5,000, and we will inscribe your name on a brass arm-rest plaque, as a visible acknowledgment of your leadership in Globe support.

The Old Globe begins the 21st Century with national and international artistic presence like never before. Reserve your place in the history of The Old Globe by calling our Development Office at (619) 231-1941 x2309 today.

The Craig Noel League

We hope you’ll consider joining the Craig Noel League, the planned giving society of The Old Globe. The time has come to secure the future of the Globe — which has enriched our lives and nourished us for nearly 70 years — so that it will do the same for generations to come. Many thoughtful friends are ensuring The Old Globe’s future by leaving gifts in their wills and estate plans to help us in this effort. The League honors today these thoughtful friends whose generosity will sustain the excellence of The Old Globe for generations.

Examples of ways friends are helping include making simple bequests, gifts of life insurance, gifts of real estate, and charitable trusts. For more information, please contact Planned Giving Officer Brad Ballard at (619) 231-1941 x2309 or via e-mail at plannedgiving@TheOldGlobe.org. Thank you.

Craig Noel
Artistic Director

Craig Noel was first appointed director in 1939, directing 15 productions prior to World War II. Since then he has directed more than 220 plays of all styles and periods, and produced more that 365 (over 40 of which were directed by William Roehs from 1961 through 1976). His vision for The Old Globe during the past 65 years has resulted in the establishment of the Shakespeare Festival in the late ’40s, the expansion to two theaters in the ’50s, Globe Educational Tours in the ’70s and Teatro Meta in the ’80s. Louis G. Spisto
Executive Director

Louis G. Spisto has been Executive Director of The Old Globe since October, 2002. During his tenure, Spisto spearheaded the return of the Globe’s acclaimed Shakespeare Repertory Season and produced several world-premiere plays and musicals, including the current Broadway musical Dirty Rotten Scoundrels. During the past two seasons, the organization has grown its subscription audience an unprecedented amount, countering a trend in the non-profit theatre industry and resulting in the highest level of attendance in over a decade. Prior to coming to the Globe, Spisto served as the Executive Director of American Ballet Theatre in New York City. While there, he increased ticket income and annual contributions for the organization by nearly 20 percent. He also tripled the Ballet’s touring weeks and the resources devoted to education and training programs. Spisto has also served as the President of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, where he provided fundraising leadership and creative direction for the orchestra’s $60 million renovation project, and helped dramatically increase ticket sales while initiating several new series for the orchestra. Spisto established a reputation as a superb arts executive here in California, where he spent over ten years as the Executive Director of the Pacific Symphony Orchestra in Orange County. During his tenure there, he tripled the orchestra’s annual budget, all while eliminating a prior deficit and successfully completing the orchestra’s first endowment campaign. In addition, he established a series of innovative recording projects with Sony Classical and oversaw a number of nationally recognized commissioning projects. A strong advocate of arts education, Spisto built one of the largest and most respected music training and outreach efforts. During his career, Spisto has also served as Director of Marketing for the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra and Director of Operations and Development for the Performing Arts Center, UC Berkeley. He holds a Masters degree from the University of Wisconsin in Arts Administration and a Bachelors of Business Administration from the University of Notre Dame, and spent many years acting, directing and producing plays and musicals throughout his student days, as well as in professional summer theater.
