Welcome to The Old Globe

Dear Friends — it’s good to have you here! Old friends are best, wouldn’t you agree? With so much activity in and around our theatres of late, with the red carpet out for the likes of Twyla Tharp, Chita Rivera, and Sandy Duncan, it’s good to know that we continue to be loyal to and support artists whose evolving careers have made such a contribution to our community, and who are largely responsible for the extraordinary level of accomplishment of these past decades.

There is a small cavalcade of Associate Artists returning for this next round, and it’s worth noting that among them, with the presence of director Seret Scott, costume designer Lewis Brown, set designer Ralph Funicello, and the great Kandis Chappell of The Constant Wife, we are also delighted to welcome home to the Carter our beloved Jonathan McMurtry whose tenure here on our stages rivals Craig Noel’s for quality, consistency, and sheer endurance. Trying, directed by Rick Seer, could have been written for Jonathan, and that comfortable fit in no way diminishes our awareness of just how fortunate we are to provide a creative home for these men and women whose talents are so interwoven with the pleasure of our playgoing. We don’t forget nor neglect the men and women upon whose backs we’ve made our reputation, any more than we ever wish to overlook your importance to us in the planning and the sustaining of this Theatre.

JACK O’BRIEN
Artistic Director

Last summer The Old Globe celebrated its 70th Anniversary and its rich history as one of the most prominent theatres in North America. With more than a quarter million attendees visiting for performances and educational events each year, The Old Globe has become integral to the fabric of this community. Initially guided by San Diego legend and American theatre icon Craig Noel, the Globe continues to raise the bar of excellence in the theatre industry under the artistic direction of the incomparable Jack O’Brien.

To secure its future and continue as a leader in the American theatre, The Old Globe has just launched a major fundraising campaign projected to raise $75 million by the Theatre’s 75th Anniversary in 2010. This campaign will enhance our endowment to ensure the long-term health of the organization; improve facilities to maintain our state-of-the-art theatres, as well as expand the Globe’s education and administrative spaces; and increase operating funds that will allow the Theatre to sustain its unparalleled level of production and artists on its stages while the endowment grows.

We invite you to join us in this important campaign to preserve your San Diego cultural landmark for future generations at whatever gift level is possible for you. Your support will be greatly appreciated.

LOUIS G. SPISTO
Executive Director

2006 at The Old Globe began with two productions that defied categorization. Twyla Tharp’s surrealistic THE TIMES THEY ARE A-CHANGIN’ was its own unique event — a Fellini-esque dreamscape of movement scored with the songs of Bob Dylan. Lee Blessing’s A Body of Water presented a shifting, unknowable world where probabilities — never mind certainties — were as rare as Diogenes’ truth-teller.

It may strike some as comforting, then, to return to the more traditional world of Shavian-style comedy as crafted by W. Somerset Maugham in The Constant Wife; or to the insightful, moving exploration of generational relationships recalled by Joanna McClelland Glass in Trying. Both explore values, mores and social customs, while they engage and entertain us in the manner of more traditional theatre. The four plays taken together offer an example of the richness of resident theatre: its diversity and breadth of view, its commitment to cover theatre’s existing canon and to search for new ground.

Subscribers make this possible, providing a financial base for each production by agreeing to support a season of plays (and getting bargain ticket prices in return). We suspect every subscriber won’t love every play, even though we hope you do, but we do believe every play we bring before you has the art and dimension to be worth your consideration and time. We thank our subscribers for supporting both theatre that feels comfy and the kind that stretches you, too. We need both kinds to stay limber.

We are pleased that you are joining us for another memorable production during our celebratory 70th Anniversary year. Our current plays are an innovative new drama entitled Trying by Joanna McClelland Glass, which reflects the playwright’s own experience of the barriers of age and class between co-workers and a revival of the classic 20th-century comedy of manners and marriage, author W. Somerset Maugham’s The Constant Wife.

To continue to support such a wide variety of plays each season, including works by Shakespeare and Broadway-bound musicals, The Old Globe has just announced a $75 million Campaign to secure the Globe’s future by providing 1) an endowment sufficient to ensure long-term stability of The Old Globe; 2) much needed enhanced facilities; and 3) critical operating support. The Board encourages each of you, as patrons of the Globe, to contact our Development Office to learn more about this Campaign and to make your own personal commitment.

I am honored to serve as Chair of The Old Globe’s Board of Directors and to help support an organization which is so highly regarded across our country. On behalf of the Board of Directors, I would like to thank you for making the Globe a part of your life. We hope you will continue to be involved as a patron and as a supporter.

Enjoy the show!

This production of Trying is generously sponsored by

Mary Beth Adderley and Richard Wright

Mary Beth Adderley and Richard Wright are both long-time San Diegans who have enjoyed The Old Globe for many years. The two believe that live theatre is an essential part of any community and they choose to support the Globe generously so that it will continue to thrive for generations to come.

Mary Beth is an active member of The Old Globe’s Board of Directors. She also serves on the Vanderbilt Board of Trust and the Board of South Coast Repertory Theatre. Richard is supportive of the arts from the theatre to our San Diego Art Institute here in Balboa Park. He is a retired Air Force officer whose passion turned from flying to sailing. He is a Staff Commodore of the Ancient Mariners Sailing Society — a group dedicated to the preservation and promotion of classic vessels.

Along with Mary Beth’s daughter Elizabeth, the two regularly attend The Old Globe, and encourage friends and colleagues to do the same. In addition, Richard and Mary Beth further support the Theatre by hosting dinners in their home featuring artists and other members of The Old Globe’s creative team.

The Old Globe Board of Directors, artists and audiences appreciate the generosity of Mary Beth Adderley and Richard Wright. We are very pleased to recognize their support as sponsors of Trying.

The Old Globe Theatre now has new seats, thanks to the generosity of many of our community members, bringing your comfort level up to that of Globe performance quality.

Installing these beautiful new seats and carpeting has been a major undertaking, and we hope you will help us defray the costs by naming one or more of the new seats. Sponsor a seat for $5,000, and we will inscribe your name on a brass arm-rest plaque, as a visible acknowledgment of your leadership in Globe support.

The Old Globe begins the 21st Century with national and international artistic presence like never before. Reserve your place in the history of The Old Globe by calling our Development Office at (619) 231-1941 x2309 today.

THE RADICAL PATRICIAN:

Francis Biddle

American democracy prides itself on the ideal that it is “of the people, by the people, and for the people” (Abraham Lincoln). Such a government demands the direct involvement of a multitude of individuals, many of whom find themselves temporarily in a capacity to shape the state of the nation and determine the direction of its future. Behind America’s historic movements and evolving political policy stand people who, after their work is done, are more or less forgotten in our popular histories. Judge Francis Biddle, the central figure of Trying, is just such a person.

Randolph, close associate of George Washington and first Attorney General of the United States. For the future Judge Biddle, the stature of his ancestors was everything; it gave him an identity, a model, a mythology, and a perpetual challenge to become “the man of action” that he saw in his forebears.

Biddle carried with him this mandate to honor the family name throughout his upbringing and education: first at the Groton School, an exclusive Massachusetts boarding institution for boys; then as a student of liberal studies at Harvard College from which he graduated cum laude; at Harvard Law where he received his degree, also with distinction, in 1911; and finally as personal secretary and protégé of the legendary Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., a man whose views would bear heavily on Biddle’s later career in government.

The next twenty years of his life seemed to pass quickly. He practiced trial law in the firm founded by his late father, served for a few years as an Assistant District Attorney and briefly enlisted in the war effort. He married Katherine Garrison Chapin, also from prominent Philadelphia stock, and they had two sons. After marrying, Biddle maintained a strict division between his public and private life. In his memoirs he spoke comparatively little of his domestic life, and we catch only glimpses of Katherine’s success as a poet. She published several volumes of poetry; was read in Harper’s, The Nation, and New Republic; had poems set to music and performed at Carnegie Hall and moved in literary circles with the likes of T.S. Eliot and Robert Frost. We hear even less of the tragic death of their son Garrison at the age of seven.

As a major force for liberal politics, Biddle’s life begins, as the play tells us, “during the Great Depression, in the 1930s ... [when] he became aware of the plight of the Pennsylvania coal miners. That is when he became a Democrat.” He investigated abuses of coal and steel workers by coal company police squads; he also represented labor unions in a number of trials. Having taken his career in this direction, he was appointed Chairman of the National Labor Relations Board in 1934. From here, his career became closely intertwined with that of fellow Groton and Harvard graduate and 32nd President of the United States, Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Impressed with the work and integrity of his younger former schoolmate, Roosevelt appointed him to be United States
Solicitor General in 1940. A year later he was moved into the Presidential cabinet as the Attorney General, an office he held for the duration of World War II, an office which, as he constantly reminded himself, was originated in 1776 by his great great grandfather, William Randolph.

As U.S. Attorney General, he is most remembered for his involvement in one of the nations darkest moments — the forced relocation and internment of Japanese Americans in detention camps subsequent to the bombing of Pearl Harbor. Biddle, from the beginning, opposed this troublesome action, doing all he could to avoid what he saw as a major violation of citizen’s rights. However, under intense pressure from President Roosevelt and the Department of War, and realizing the limits of his own power, Biddle finally withdrew his opposition and allowed the deportation of the Japanese. This acquiescence to authority haunted him throughout the remainder of his life. Most critics did not blame Biddle for his part in the controversy. His own conscience, however, was more exacting.

Following the war, Biddle was appointed by President Truman as the Chief American Judge of the International Military Tribunal at Nuremberg. From 1945-46 he sat on a bench beside judges from England, France, and the USSR to prosecute the war crimes of the remaining Nazi leadership. His judicial actions in Nuremberg were widely admired. His writings subsequent to the trials are full of valuable insights concerning the nature of international law and are vivid in their reconstructions of the vilified accused.

The later years of Judge Biddle’s life were spent at an increasingly greater removal from public life. He remained industrious, however, writing several books on policy, a biographical sketch of Mr. Justice Holmes, as well as two large volumes of autobiographical memoirs. In 1967, about a year before he died, his wife hired a secretary by the name of Joanna McClelland Glass to assist him in his continued labors. This sometimes troubled working relationship is the genesis for Trying, the former secretary’s dramatic tribute to her mentor and a great political figure. Judge Biddle died in October 1968. Although for most, his memory has entirely faded, his recent re-birth on the stage is the fulfillment of his favorite lines from Dobson:

All passes. Art alone enduring stays to us;
The bust outlasts the throne, the coin, Tiberius.

— Dustin Condren, Stanford University
A TRYING ALLIANCE
The True-to-Life Story of Playwright Joanna McClelland Glass

He was an eighty-one year old patrician, a Philadelphia “mainliner,” a product of Groton and Harvard, with a fervent devotion to elevated and correct language and syntax. A man of international eminence, once powerful and revered, he is now heading through a maze of illnesses to his decline. She was, in her own words: a “prairie populist,” born and raised in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, product of a hard life of near poverty and abuse, in a family that became increasingly dysfunctional as her father descended into fatal alcoholism.

In Trying, the autobiographical play written by playwright and novelist Joanna McClelland Glass, Sarah Schorr is 25, pregnant, and in a less than happy marriage with a budding academician. In real life Ms. Glass was somewhat older and the mother of three children. In Trying, Sarah is, as Joanna was, a bright and determined young woman. This unlikely alliance came about when she was hired by Judge Biddle’s wife as a personal secretary to help sort cluttered papers and record his dictated memoirs.

The play opens with a brief but telling exchange. Biddle says “Your name is Sarah?…Sarah with an “h”? A loaded question. Biddle the grammatical purist and traditionalist, would have abhorred popular contemporary spellings such as “Sara.” Sarah is a nascent writer, as was Joanna, and this language connection, while a source of tension, was an unspoken bond between the two. Yet the alliance was indeed “trying” for both individuals. In Trying, Biddle says, “I will be eighty two next year. You will find that I’m old and ailing and cranky. You will find that I function somewhere between lucidity and senility. I was fifty-six years old when you were born. If I were you I wouldn’t be quite so confident of your staying powers. We can’t help but find each other extremely trying.” To which Sarah replies “I promised Mrs. Biddle that I’d try.”

The play is indeed about trying — as a verb or an adjective. Despite the end-of-life theme running through Trying, the play is not dark and foreboding. Reviewer Randy Kandel wrote, “Glass’ classy humor, both erudite and everyday, makes gentle banter of the inevitable differences between their social class and age.”

The story happened — in the play and in real time — in 1962. In an interview with Emily Nyberg at the Victory Garden Theater in Chicago where Trying opened in 2003, Glass stated, “Within a couple of years after working with Judge Biddle, I very badly wanted to write it all down, because it had a tremendous effect on me. And I did write it down in a one-act play about forty minutes long. But I knew innately that it had to be a full length play.”

Thirty years later Ms. Glass suffered the illness and loss of her longtime companion, Canadian actor George Sperdakos. Brought close again to the concept of the end of life, she went to work to write the full-length version. She says, “There’s a line in the play where Biddle says ‘Holding things in abeyance is a woman’s plight. Biology decided that.’ Certainly I didn’t hold everything in abeyance — a writing career did evolve — but I think this particular play required me to have a deeper knowledge of aging and illness. Of one’s mortality. Trying is about the last year in a life of enormous accomplishment. I was a green girl from the Canadian prairie; I was so impressed with all of his credentials, by the oldness and illustriousness of his Philadelphian family. But here was a sick old man who had a great deal of pride, who hated my knowing how difficult it was for him to make a phone call, how forgetful he was… I was less in tune with his old age and his illnesses than I am now. Back then I was much more dazzled by the enormous difference between his background and mine. Biddle’s family bought a great deal of what is now New Jersey in the late 1600s — from William Penn, actually. That’s a far cry from the way my mother’s family arrived in Saskatchewan. Every family has its own lore, and my mother’s lore was all about pioneering. My mother’s grandparents went to Saskatchewan to homestead…My mother was illiterate all her life. She’d been taken out of school to take care of the younger ones. Biddle was born in Paris, educated at Harvard, his father went to Yale, knew Benjamin Franklin’s great-granddaughter.”

This daughter, a first-hand witness to the painful limitations illiteracy caused in her mother’s difficult life, has become a prolific, successful, and honored writer of novels and plays. Now in her sixties, Joanna McClelland Glass lives and continues to write in suburban Chicago.

The time has come to secure the future of the Globe — which has enriched our lives and nourished us for nearly 70 years — so that it will do the same for generations to come. Many thoughtful friends are ensuring The Old Globe’s future by leaving gifts in their wills and estate plans to help us in this effort. The League honors today these thoughtful friends whose generosity will sustain the excellence of The Old Globe for generations, and we hope you’ll consider joining the Craig Noel League, the planned giving society of The Old Globe.

Examples of ways friends are helping include making simple bequests, gifts of life insurance, gifts of real estate, and charitable trusts. For more information, please contact Planned Giving Officer Brad Ballard at (619) 231-1941 x2309 or via e-mail at plannedgiving@TheOldGlobe.org. Thank you.

CRAIG NOEL, Founding Director

During Craig Noel’s distinguished 67-year career with The Old Globe, the much-honored director has staged over 225 productions of all styles and periods. Craig has been associated with The Old Globe since its community-theatre inception in 1937 when he made his debut as an actor. Two years later he accepted his first directorial assignments, staging four of the season’s seven productions.

Since then, Craig has guided the organization through its metamorphosis from a community theatre of the highest standards to one of the nation’s most successful not-for-profit theatres. In doing so, he has enriched the quality of life in San Diego for generations of citizens who have become today’s theatre-goers and arts supporters.
To you – and to thousands of other theatre lovers –

The Old Globe is an integral part of your lives, providing some of the best Broadway musicals, classics and new plays in the country.

By supporting this great theatre with a Circle Patron gift of $1,500 or more, you not only add to the artistic quality of Globe productions but you also can take advantage of the many benefits enjoyed by Old Globe Circle Patrons, such as...

* Unlimited access to the Lipinsky Family Suite, the Globe’s VIP Lounge
  * VIP ticketing and personal service
  * Invitations to Meet the Artist events and Opening Night celebrations
  * Backstage Tour opportunities
  * And much, much more...

Open prior to and during each evening performance, the Lipinsky Family Suite offers a fully-hosted bar, a pre-show dinner menu and private restrooms.

One more way we can say thank you for your support.

FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR OF DEVELOPMENT BRAD BALLARD AT (619) 231-1941 x2309.
The Old Globe’s ability to maintain the highest standard of excellence, while keeping ticket prices affordable, is due in large part to the annual financial support of nearly 3,500 individuals, businesses, foundations and government agencies. Please join us in giving a warm thanks and recognition to these leaders who have made tonight and many other performances possible. The Old Globe appreciates the support of those who have stepped into the spotlight:

Louis G. Spisto
Executive Director

Louis G. Spisto has been Executive Director of The Old Globe since October, 2002. During his tenure, Spisto spearheaded the return of the Globe’s acclaimed Shakespeare Repertory Season and produced several world-premiere plays and musicals, including the current Broadway musical Dirty Rotten Scoundrels. During the past two seasons, the organization has grown its subscription audience an unprecedented amount, countering a trend in the non-profit theatre industry and resulting in the highest level of attendance in over a decade. Prior to coming to the Globe, Spisto served as the Executive Director of American Ballet Theatre in New York City. While there, he increased ticket income and annual contributions for the organization by nearly 20 percent. He also tripled the Ballet’s touring weeks and the resources devoted to education and training programs. Spisto has also served as the President of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, where he provided fundraising leadership and creative direction for the orchestra’s $60 million renovation project, and helped dramatically increase ticket sales while initiating several new series for the orchestra. Spisto established a reputation as a superb arts executive here in California, where he spent ten years as the Executive Director of the Pacific Symphony Orchestra in Orange County. During his tenure there, he tripled the orchestra’s annual budget, all while eliminating a prior deficit and successfully completing the orchestra’s first endowment campaign. In addition, he established a series of innovative recording projects with Sony Classical and oversaw a number of nationally recognized commissioning projects. A strong advocate of arts education, Spisto built one of the largest and most respected music training and outreach efforts. During his career, Spisto has also served as Director of Marketing for the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra and Director of Operations and Development for the Performing Arts Center, UC Berkeley. He holds a Masters degree from the University of Wisconsin in Arts Administration and a Bachelors of Business Administration from the University of Notre Dame, and spent many years acting, directing and producing plays and musicals throughout his student days, as well as in professional summer theatre.

Jerry Patch
Resident Artistic Director

Jerry Patch was appointed Resident Artistic Director of The Old Globe in February 2005. He most recently served as the Dramaturg and a member of the long standing artistic team at Southern California’s Tony Award®-winning South Coast Repertory (SCR), where he coordinated the development of 350 new plays, including three Pulitzer Prize winners and numerous other finalists. Patch became the top choice for this new role at the Globe due to his many years of artistic accomplishments, his exceptional relationships with the nation’s leading directors and playwrights, and his enthusiastic commitment to new work. While at SCR, Patch worked as Dramaturg on numerous new works, including Donald Margulies’ Sight Unseen and Brooklyn Boy, which just opened to critical acclaim on Broadway, Margaret Edson’s Pulitzer Prize-winning Wit, Howard Korder’s Search and Destroy, Amy Freed’s The Beard of Avon, as well as Intimate Apparel, Freedomland and several world-premieres by Richard Greenberg, including Three Days of Rain and A Naked Girl on the Appian Way. In addition, he co-conceived The Education of Randy Newman with Michael Roth and Mr. Newman. Patch also served as the project director of SCR’s renowned Pacific Playwrights Festival, which annually introduces seven new plays to an audience of national theatre leaders. Typically, more than 75% of the plays presented receive multiple productions in theatres across the country. During his tenure at SCR, Patch also held the position of Artistic Director (1990-1997) of The Sundance Theatre Program, which included the Sundance Playwrights Laboratory, one of the nation’s leading new play development programs. Additionally, he ran the Sundance Summer Theatre, a repertory of 2-3 productions staged outdoors for Utah audiences and The Sundance Children’s Theatre, which was dedicated to the development and presentation of new works for family audiences by leading American playwrights. He has also served as a consulting Dramaturg for New York’s renowned Roundabout Theatre Company, one of two of the largest theatre companies in the country.
