Dear Friends,

Welcome to Summer Season 2008! And as the saying goes, “pardon our dust”! As you’ve no doubt noticed, we’ve begun construction of the Globe’s beautiful new campus, including a new arena theatre, education center, and re-designed plaza. We’ve even created a temporary pub across the plaza so we can continue serving our patrons while building continues. We’ve been telling you about this facilities project over the past few months and we’re thrilled that it is now becoming a reality. We have exciting plans for theatre and education programs in the new center, and we thank you for being a part of the excitement during the construction period. I promise it will be worth any inconvenience.

Summer is a time for pleasure, and Resident Artistic Director Darko Tresnjak has chosen the perfect summer fare in The Pleasure of His Company. We’re delighted to welcome back Patrick Page, the Globe’s 2008 Shiley Artist-in-Residence, who was last seen here in the spring’s smash hit Dancing in the Dark. Just steps away, Donald Margulies’ Sight Unseen plays in the Globe’s Arena Stage at the San Diego Museum of Art’s James S. Copley Auditorium (a temporary space specially built for our intimate productions). And, of course, it can’t be summer without the Globe's nationally-recognized Shakespeare Festival in the Lowell Davies Festival Theatre. Romeo and Juliet, The Merry Wives of Windsor, and All’s Well That Ends Well run in repertory with a wonderful company of actors — many of whom you’ll recognize from summers past — through September.

Our innovative bilingual education program, the Summer Shakespeare Intensive, will give young people an extraordinary opportunity to explore Shakespeare in a multi-cultural context this summer. We’ve brought forty high school students from around the county to work with our Old Globe/USD Master of Fine Arts students, as they prepare and perform a Spanish/English adaptation of Romeo and Juliet. Their training and rehearsal will be documented in a blog on our website, and they take to the Festival Theatre on August 11. Join us in following their progress and enjoying their performance.

We have a lot to look forward to in the coming 2008/09 Season, as well. We’ll present two timely world premieres: Mark Olsen's Cornelia, about the turbulent lives of an iconic political couple, and Itamar Moses’ Back Back Back, a fascinating look at steroid use in professional baseball. Two large-scale revivals, Clare Booth Luce’s The Women and John Guare’s Six Degrees of Separation, will grace the Old Globe stage in lavish productions. The “Classics Up Close” series continues with Arthur Miller’s The Price on our arena stage, where we’ll also host the West Coast premiere of Michael Hollinger’s Opus and a new production of Mia McCullough’s touching Since Africa. Subscriptions for this great year of theatre are available now.

This summer is a particularly eventful time for the Globe, and, more than anything, we’re so pleased to have the pleasure of your company!

The Legler Benbough Foundation

The Legler Benbough Foundation is helping The Old Globe sustain its national reputation for artistic excellence by supporting work that challenges audiences to push beyond the boundaries of their own experience. It is hoped that as a result, San Diego audiences will continue to have a wider spectrum of theatrical performances available to them.
Dear Friends,

Welcome to the 2008 Summer Season! Construction has begun on our exciting new facility, the Conrad Prebys Theatre Center, which includes the Sheryl and Harvey White Theatre, a 250-seat arena stage, and the Karen and Donald Cohn Education Center, featuring Hattix Hall. Scheduled for completion in late 2009, these facilities are made possible by our capital campaign, Securing A San Diego Landmark, led by magnanimous gifts from Donald and Darlene Shiley, Conrad Prebys and our Board of Directors. We are very grateful to them and the many other community-spirited supporters of the Globe who have contributed to Securing A San Diego Landmark.

With construction of our new facilities underway, the Securing a San Diego Landmark campaign has reached 75% of its goal. As you consider helping us with the critical last phase of the campaign, you’ll be pleased to know that the foremost evaluator of non-profit organizations, Charity Navigator, ranks the Globe in the top 6% of all non-profits nationwide based on our record of “exceptional” financial stability and the resources we devote to our artistic and education programs. When you give to The Old Globe, you can be confident that your gift is being used well.

Thank you for your support of The Old Globe. Enjoy the show!

“The work on the stages of The Old Globe speaks for itself,” in the view of Donald Cohn, longtime Board member and Globe supporter. Karen and Donald Cohn have been involved at the Globe for decades. Both have served as Chair of the Board of Directors, a position Donald now holds. Karen was founding chair of the Globe Gala, has since chaired a series of very successful Galas, and has been a leader in many other Globe activities.

The Globe is a family tradition for the Cohns. Karen, a native San Diegan, began attending the Globe’s Shakespeare Festival as a teenager and has passed the tradition on to their son Jonathan, who also worked as an intern at the Globe and is now in film school. “When I met Don, one of our first dates was at the Globe, to see a production of Julius Caesar, with [Associate Artist] Jonathan McMurtry in the cast,” says Karen.

Karen was a founding member of the City of San Diego Commission for Arts and Culture. “In that role, I reviewed proposals from all the arts organizations and the Globe’s was always among the strongest and most impressive. When my term on the Commission ended, I knew I wanted to become more involved at the Globe.”

“The Globe has changed a lot in the sixteen years since I first joined the Board. I loved working with [Artistic Director Emeritus] Jack O’Brien and [former Managing Director] Tom Hall. And now [current CEO/Executive Producer] Lou Spisto has been spectacular on so many different levels. The Globe has grown tremendously; he has increased our presence on Broadway and done so much to build the organization. I feel like we’ve been through the birthing pains of the organization and want to stay involved to see what happens next. It’s a kind of family feeling, the pride we have in the Globe.”

The Cohns fit their commitment to the Globe into very busy lives. Donald was Founder and CEO of DataQuick, the nation’s leading real estate information company, which he led for eighteen years. He now works in start-up investment in the tech world and continues his 40-year career in real estate development. Karen is a former attorney. They also own Ballena Vista Farms, one of the largest thoroughbred breeding facilities in California, and are very involved in thoroughbred racing.

But the arts hold a special place in their lives. “I see theatre as a ‘higher calling,’ if I can use that term,” says Karen. “When you see something on stage, it resonates more deeply. The juxtaposition of art, words, thought and performance gets into your soul. Moral, philosophical, and aesthetic ideas are expressed so much more effectively through theatre than any other art form. There’s nothing like the immediacy and reality of theatre.”

Karen and Donald Cohn believe that ‘everyone needs to see theatre.” And through their generous support of The Old Globe, they do all they can to make that possible.
SHILEY ARTIST-IN-RESIDENCE 2008: PATRICK PAGE

Established in 2002 with a magnanimous gift from Donald and Darlene Shiley, the Shiley Artist-in-Residence program furthers the Globe’s commitment to bringing artists of the highest caliber, drawn from a national and international pool of talent, to work at the Theatre.

Donald and Darlene Shiley have been dedicated supporters of The Old Globe for more than two decades. Their lead gift of $20 million to the Globe’s current capital and endowment campaign, Securing a San Diego Landmark, marked the largest individual contribution in the Globe’s history. The Shilies have served as sponsors for dozens of productions and have been Season Sponsors since 1995. In addition, they have helped to fund many Globe projects, including the Shiley Terrace Apartments, which provides much-needed local housing for Globe artists, as well as underwriting two full scholarships in The Old Globe/University of San Diego Master of Fine Arts Program. In honor of their enduring support, the stage of the Old Globe Theatre was named the Donald and Darlene Shiley Stage. The Shiley Artist-in-Residence marks one more way in which the Shilies support the creativity and quality of the work on the Globe’s stages.

Actor/Playwright Patrick Page has been acclaimed on Broadway for his roles as the “Grinch” in Dr. Seuss’ How the Grinch Stole Christmas!, “Scar” in The Lion King and “Lumière” in Disney’s Beauty and the Beast. Other Broadway credits include The Kentucky Cycle and Julius Caesar. Off-Broadway he has appeared in Richard II at the Public Theatre and Rex at the York Theater Company. At The Shakespeare Theatre Company he played the title role in Macbeth and “Iago” in Othello. Additional regional theater credits include the Long Wharf Theatre, Seattle Repertory Theatre, Oregon Shakespeare Festival, Missouri Repertory Theatre and Utah Shakespeare Festival, among others. In 2006 his play Swansong was among those featured at the Summer Play Festival in New York City.

As Shiley Artist-in-Residence, Page recently received rave reviews for his performance as the hilarious “Jeffrey Cordova” in the Globe’s world-premiere musical Dancing in the Dark and currently stars as “Biddeford Poole” in The Pleasure of His Company.
This Old Globe production is the first major revival of The Pleasure of His Company since its original run on Broadway, which opened on October 2, 1958. The Broadway production was a critical and popular success, running for 474 performances, an unusually long run for a play at that time. It was written by Samuel A. Taylor and Cornelia Otis Skinner, who each dedicated the play to the other “with love.” Cornelia Otis Skinner starred as Katherine Dougherty. Cyril Ritchard, who played Biddeford Poole, directed. A play about family, the original production was indeed a family affair!

THE PLEASURE OF HIS COMPANY AND VERTIGO:

The San Francisco Connection

1958 was a fruitful year for playwright Samuel A. Taylor. Not only did he have a Broadway hit in The Pleasure of His Company, the same year saw the premiere of his best-known film — Alfred Hitchcock’s Vertigo, for which Taylor wrote the screenplay.

Both the play and the film are set in San Francisco and draw deeply on the atmosphere of the city, including, of course, the Golden Gate Bridge. Taylor and Hitchcock both loved San Francisco: Hitchcock called it “the Paris of America.” When previous scripts for Vertigo proved unacceptable, Hitchcock called upon Taylor, who had been recommended for his knowledge of the Bay Area (Taylor had attended UC Berkeley). For the film, Taylor deepened the use of San Francisco as an evocative setting. He also made the sometimes controversial decision to reveal the plot twist in the middle of the film, transforming the film from a standard mystery story to a psychological study of obsession. Vertigo is often considered Hitchcock’s masterpiece and is included in the American Film Institute’s list of 100 Greatest American Movies.

Vertigo is one of Director Darko Tresnjak’s favorite films and, with Taylor having written both, the film served as an inspiration for the Globe production’s design. Another connection between Taylor’s play and the film is that both were costumed by the legendary costume designer Edith Head. The Pleasure of His Company is one of only two Broadway plays she costumed (she worked primarily in film). Tresnjak and Costume Designer Fabio Toblini drew upon Head’s costume designs for the film’s star Kim Novak in designing the clothes for the Globe’s production. Novak’s famous grey suit in Vertigo almost didn’t happen; Novak initially refused to wear the color and fabric Hitchcock wanted. He passed the problem on to Head, with the comment, “I don’t care what she wears — as long as it’s a grey suit!” Head was able to arrive at a design that Novak was happy to wear — and that design inspired the first costume worn by Ellen Karas (“Katherine Dougherty”) in the Globe’s production of The Pleasure of His Company.

The Winchester Mystery House

The set of The Pleasure of His Company, designed by Alexander Dodge, was inspired by the famous Winchester Mystery House in San Jose, CA. This legendary mansion had been under construction from 1884-1922 under the close watch of owner Sarah Winchester, widow of gun magnate William Wirt Winchester. According to popular belief, Sarah Winchester had been instructed by a psychic to continue building additions to the house in order to protect her from the ghosts of those killed by Winchester guns. As a result, the mansion grew to an impressive 160 rooms featuring oddities such as stairs that led to the ceiling, doors that opened to walls, and a room devoted specifically to séances. Many decorative elements featured a spider web motif, which she believed to be lucky, or were repeated thirteen times to ward off malevolent spirits.

Charm...

You know what charm is: a way of getting the answer yes without having asked any clear question. — Albert Camus

You must have charm to reach the pinnacle. It is made of everything and of nothing, the striving will, the look, the walk, the proportions of the body, the sound of the voice, the ease of the gestures. It is not at all necessary to be handsome or to be pretty; all that is needed is charm. — Sarah Bernhardt

An object in possession seldom retains the same charm that it had in pursuit. — Pliny the Younger

Charming people live up to the very edge of their charm, and behave as outrageously as the world lets them. — Logan Pearsall Smith

Winning children (who appear so guileless) are children who have discovered how effective charm and modesty and a delicately calculated spontaneity are in winning what they want. — Thornton Wilder

The rarest of all things in American life is charm. We spend billions every year manufacturing fake charm that goes under the heading “public relations.” Without it, America would be grim indeed. — Anita Loos
THE PLEASURE OF HIS COMPANY: A LOOK BACK

Here are some events that took place around the world in 1958, the year of the original production:

- San Francisco’s Union Square became a California State Historical Landmark.
- The New York Giants baseball team moved to San Francisco.
- The first domestic passenger jet flight took place on December 10, a flight from New York City to Miami.
- On January 24, the first man-made nuclear fusion occurred.
- The USSR sent Sputnik 2 into space, carrying Laika, a dog. The capsule was destroyed, burning in the atmosphere.
- President Eisenhower signed the National Aeronautics and Space Act, creating NASA.
- Nikita Khrushchev became Premier of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics (USSR).
- Mao Tse Tung started the “Great Leap Forward” in China, resulting in a famine that killed 30 million people.
- The remains of soldiers killed in World War II and the Korean conflict were buried in the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery.
- Playwright Arthur Miller was cleared by the Washington Court of Appeals of a conviction for contempt of Congress for his refusal to testify before the House Un-American Activities Committee.
- The US Supreme Court ordered Little Rock High School to integrate.
- Queen Elizabeth II named four women to peerages — the first women to sit in Britain’s House of Lords.
- The Barbie doll was patented by Mattel.
- McDonald’s sold its 100 millionth hamburger.
- CBS Labs introduced the stereophonic record.
- Jerry Lee Lewis’ “Great Balls of Fire” was a #1 record.
- Elvis Presley was inducted into the Army.
- Joan Baez gave her first public concert.

Samuel Taylor
Cornelia Otis Skinner
(Playwrights)

Samuel Taylor and Cornelia Otis Skinner co-wrote the award-winning Broadway play, The Pleasure of His Company, and Skinner starred in the original Broadway production. Taylor made his Broadway playwrighting debut with The Happy Time in 1950. He also wrote the plays Avanti!, Legend, and Sabrina Fair. He co-wrote the popular Audrey Hepburn film adaptation, Sabrina, earning a Golden Globe Award and an Academy Award nomination. Other film credits include The Eddy Duchin Story and the Alfred Hitchcock films Vertigo and Topaz. Taylor was also nominated for a Tony Award in 1962 as a co-producer of the play No Strings, for which he also wrote the book. Skinner, an American author, playwright and actress, studied theatre at the Sorbonne in Paris before beginning her career on the stage in 1921. She was most famous for the monodramas she wrote and staged in the 1930s, including The Loves of Charles II, The Empress Eugenie and The Wives of Henry VIII. She also received critical acclaim for her roles in Lady Windermere’s Fan (1946) and Paris ‘90 (1952). Skinner penned the best-seller Our Hearts Were Young and Gay with co-author Emily Kimbrough. Other writing credits include Madame Sarah, a biography of Sarah Bernhardt, and Elegant Wits and Grand Horizontals about the Belle Époque.

How does the living room of a grand old Victorian house overlooking the Golden Gate Bridge make its way to the stage of The Old Globe?

It begins with Director Darko Tresnjak and Scenic Designer Alexander Dodge working with the text of the play. Like many 20th century playwrights, Samuel Taylor wrote a lengthy stage direction, almost two pages, describing the room, including such practical details as “the back wall of the room runs on a slant from U.R. [upper stage right] to D.L. [down right]” and such atmospheric suggestions as “the present occupants show a flair for combining the old and the new with taste and discrimination and humor.”

It's up to the director and scenic designer to interpret these suggestions anew for each production of the play, as the set serves several functions at once. It must be the right environment for the time, place, and action of the play. It must be a practical space for the actors to work in and for the audience to see the action within the dimensions and sightlines of a particular theatre. And, above all, it is the visual image that first invites the audience to join in the world of the play, wherever that may be.

For this production, the scenic designer studied actual Victorian houses in the Bay area in developing the design, deriving elements of the set from real-life examples. The unusual and striking spindled archway over the staircase is based on the front porch railings of an actual house. The wallpaper copies an actual sample from the period, re-created by Globe scenic artists. Scenic designers use many methods in creating their plans for a set, from pen-and-ink drawings to computer drafting programs. Plans always include a series of miniature models of the set, “elevations” (sketches of the vertical surfaces of the set), and samples of the colors, fabrics, and other materials that will be used in constructing the set.

Once the set is designed, it falls to the Technical Department to make it a reality. The scenery for every production at the Globe is designed specifically for that production and built by the Theatre’s talented artists and craftspeople. Technical Director Ben Thoron and his staff translate the design into the specific materials and construction techniques needed to build it. The carpenters then build the elements of the set and the scenic artists create whatever surface those elements require.

The basic structure of the set is composed of “flats,” vertical structures that in this set represent the walls of the room. These are built as individual pieces from sheets of wood and joined together to create the shape of the room. Doors and windows are set into the flats; those too are built by the scene shop. To create the impression of a whole house beyond the living room, walls and furniture were specifically designed to show through the open doorways, suggesting the adjacent rooms.

Architectural decoration, such as moldings, are either made in-house or purchased. The Technical Department scours the country to find sources for accurate architectural details for the wide range of periods and locations needed for the variety of plays produced at the Globe. For example, the spindles in the archway over the stairs in this set were made by the Disney molding shop, which makes similar items for the film industry.

Once the flats are built, the Scenic Artists finish the surfaces with paint, wallpaper, and other coverings. For some purposes, ordinary household paint serves as the basis; there are also special theatrical paints, which are more deeply saturated with tints to hold their color under theatrical lighting. For The Pleasure of His Company, five gallons of paint were used for the walls and another 15 gallons to create the wood grain effects on the wooden surfaces.

Scenic artists also create elements like the scrim covering the stage when the audience enters. The lovely branch of mimosa (chosen because of its importance in The Pleasure of His Company) on the deep blue background was hand-painted by Globe scenic artists on a cotton scrim material (a mesh fabric often used for “see-through” effects on stage). It took three people five days, working with paint brushes on the end of bamboo poles, to complete the 40-foot scrim!

The stunning view of the Golden Gate Bridge is based on a photograph taken specifically for the production by Thoron’s father. The image was separated into two parts, the background landscape and the bridge itself. The landscape was digitally altered to remove a freeway that didn’t exist in the 1950s. The landscape and bridge were printed by a billboard printer and attached to flats in the Globe's scene shop. The final image you see is made up of the landscape flat in the background, with the bridge flat, cut to size, layered in front of it to give the view depth and dimension.

Creating an interior employs many of the same materials and techniques used to build our own houses and offices. But, because it is meant to be seen from the audience, a stage set often requires broader and stronger visual elements than we would put in our own living rooms. And because the space is designed more to be seen than to hold up under ordinary use, some elements can be simulated in ways that save time or money. For example, the lovely coved ceilings of the Dougherty's living room are made of Styrofoam! The oak parquet floors are, in reality, sheets of oak veneer over an inexpensive hardwood core. The parquet pattern is cut into the veneer using the Globe's CNC router, a computer-controlled cutting station that can create an almost unlimited variety of patterns. To give the impression of age and use over the years, the oak was stained and varnished with different finishes in various areas to simulate the patina of an old wooden floor.

On the other hand, sometimes details are included that may not be seen clearly by the audience. Could you tell that the wallpaper beneath the wainscoting is embossed with a floral pattern? Even if you couldn't see the individual flowers, the texture they give the wallpaper adds depth and visual interest to the scene. One of the things that makes theatre such a special experience is that each individual chooses, moment-to-moment, where to direct attention. Unlike film, where the director chooses what the audience will see, in the theatre you can chose, for example, whether to look at the person speaking or the person reacting, or you may focus on a detail of the set. So the artists responsible for the set make sure that, wherever your eye may light, there will be something pleasing and interesting to see.

Until recently, scenery was built in the 4,500 square foot scene shop located beneath and behind the Old Globe stage. Early this year, The Old Globe Technical Center moved to a new building a few miles away in southeastern San Diego — where the scene shop now has 16,000 square feet! With this change comes much greater flexibility in construction methods, room to lay out and assemble complete sets in the shop, and capacity for working on multiple projects. The set for The Pleasure of His Company is the first large-scale set constructed in the Technical Center and moved onto the Old Globe stage.

So the answer to the question of how a Victorian living room gets to the stage is — it begins in the minds of the playwright, director, and designer and ends up traveling by truck up the freeway! But it reaches its final destination only when the curtain rises and it becomes part of your experience of The Pleasure of His Company.
The Old Globe’s ability to maintain the highest standard of excellence, while keeping ticket prices affordable, is due in large part to the financial support of more than 3,500 individuals, businesses, foundations and government agencies. Please join us in giving a warm thanks and recognition to these leaders who have made tonight and our 625 other performances possible. The Old Globe appreciates the support of those who have stepped into the spotlight.

Repetory Season and brought to the Globe several new musicals, including the critically-acclaimed A Catered Affair, the launch of the national tour of the Tony Award-winning Avenue Q and the Broadway transfers of Chita Rivera: The Dancer’s Life, and the Twyla Tharp/ Bob Dylan musical, THE TIMES THEY ARE A-CHANGIN‘. He has produced over 75 plays and musicals, including Dirty Rotten Scoundrels, the west coast premiere of the Tony-winning play Take Me Out and the annual holiday favorite, Dr. Seuss’ How the Grinch Stole Christmas. Spistro has managed the Globe’s Capital Campaign to raise $175 million by the Theatre’s 75th anniversary in 2010. Launched in March 2006, the campaign has reached 75% of its goal to date. During the past four seasons, the Globe has grown its subscription audience an unprecedented amount, resulting in the highest level of attendance in over a decade. The Globe was also recognized by Charity Navigator, America’s premier charity evaluator, which recently gave the Globe its third consecutive 4-Star rating. A strong advocate of arts education, Spistro initiated several new programs including an innovative cross-border project involving students from both San Diego and Tijuana in a unique bilingual production of Romeo and Juliet. He also launched a free matinee series which brings thousands of students to the Globe’s productions. Spistro established a reputation as a superb arts executive here in California, where he spent over ten years as the Executive Director of the Pacific Symphony Orchestra in Orange County. During his tenure there, he tripled the orchestra’s annual budget, while eliminating a prior deficit and successfully completing the orchestra’s first endowment campaign. In addition, he established a series of innovative recording projects with Sony Classical and oversaw a number of nationally recognized commissioning projects. He also served as the chief executive at both American Ballet Theatre and The Detroit Symphony. He holds a Masters degree from the University of Wisconsin in Arts Administration and a Bachelors of Business Administration from the University of Notre Dame, and spent many years directing, producing and as an actor in plays and musicals throughout his college and graduate school years, as well as in professional summer theatre.
