Welcome to THE OLD GLOBE

Anna Christie marks the sixth production in The Old Globe’s Classics Up Close series, in which we bring major, landmark plays into our intimate Sheryl and Harvey White Theatre, allowing audiences to experience great drama in new and often unexpected ways. Anna Christie is an early play by Eugene O’Neill, a universal story of family struggle that draws from O’Neill’s own experiences living and working at sea. The lure and fascination of the ocean, which permeate Anna Christie, are familiar to many of us San Diegans. This production also marks The Old Globe premiere of director Daniel Goldstein, who joins us straight from directing the Broadway revival of Godspell.

As you may know, The Old Globe has embarked upon a nationwide search for new artistic leadership, assisted by the search firm AlbertHall&Associates. The firm was co-founded by former Globe Managing Director Tom Hall, whose knowledge of and commitment to The Old Globe are great assets to this process. We look forward to an exciting new chapter in the artistic life of The Old Globe as we continue to pursue our mission, serve our San Diego community and create some of the best theatre in the country.

Michael G. Murphy
Interim Managing Director

Mission Statement

The mission of The Old Globe is to preserve, strengthen, and advance American theatre by: Creating theatrical experiences of the highest professional standards; Producing and presenting works of exceptional merit, designed to reach current and future audiences; Ensuring diversity and balance in programming; Providing an environment for the growth and education of theatre professionals, audiences and the community at large.

The Old Globe’s premier place in the pantheon of American theatrical venues is secured in significant part by the consistent quality our resident professionals bring to the productions you see on our stages. The very length of our production schedule gives those professionals an opportunity to showcase their skills across a uniquely varied set of programs from musicals to classics to new plays and beyond.

This spring, we give you both Eugene O’Neill’s landmark American classic Anna Christie and A Room with a View, an exciting World Premiere that brings E.M. Forster’s novel to the musical stage for the first time.

While the quality and diversity of our 15-play production schedule is a key to our great success in maintaining an audience of more than 250,000 each year, the generosity of donors like you is ultimately what makes everything possible. Ticket sales last year covered slightly more than half our costs. Most of the rest came from donations large and small, and we take every opportunity to thank those of you responsible.

Our future depends on growing our base of subscribers and donors. Your support for the Globe not only ensures San Diego’s access to the best that American theatre has to offer, but makes possible a broad range of educational and supplementary artistic programs that enrich the community far beyond our stages.

Welcome to our theatres and enjoy the performance.

Sincerely,

Harold W. Fuson, Jr.

Eugene O’Neill
Transforming the American Stage

BY DANIELLE MAGES AMATO

Eugene O’Neill (1888-1953) pioneered modern American drama. Instead of the melodrama, variety shows and drawing-room comedy so popular on American stages, he wrote earthy, naturalistic plays drawn from his own life, and then experimental, expressionist dramas, and finally some of the great masterworks of American theatre. He is the only American playwright ever to win the Nobel Prize in Literature.

The second son of James O’Neill, a popular touring actor, O’Neill was born in a hotel and spent much of his childhood traveling the country with his family. After an ill-fated year at Princeton University — he was asked to leave when he failed to complete any of his courses — he entered a period of wandering. He worked a series of short-term jobs, tried his hand at acting and took to the sea. He sailed to Honduras to look for gold; he worked as a seaman on a Norwegian ship bound for Buenos Aires; he traveled back and forth to England on tramp steamers and passenger liners. When he returned to New York, he found it hard to leave his sea-going habits behind him. He took a room in a flophouse above a saloon that catered to sailors, a “bottom-of-the-sea rathskeller” called Jimmy the Priest’s. (That bar and its denizens would form a major setting for both Anna Christie and his later play The Iceman Cometh.)

Dark times descended upon O’Neill. In early 1912, he attempted suicide, was rescued by his flophouse roommate and just months later contracted tuberculosis. During his recovery in a Connecticut sanitorium, however, he devoured plays by the great new European dramatists: Henrik Ibsen, August Strindberg, Maxim Gorky. On his release, he had a newfound purpose: “To be an artist or nothing.” With the support of his father, he published a volume of one-acts. In 1916, he found his way to the Provincetown Players, who gave him his first production and launched his career as a playwright. He won the Pulitzer Prize for his first full-length play, Beyond the Horizon.

Writing the play that would eventually become Anna Christie was a struggle for O’Neill. Over a number of years he wrote and rewrote it, worked and reworked it. He gave the play four different titles over the course of its development — Chris Christopherson, The Ole Davil, Tides and finally Anna...
Christie. It was even produced and published in two very different versions. The final version of the play opened on Broadway in 1920, where it was a critical and commercial success. It was embraced by audiences and won O’Neill his second Pulitzer Prize. It was quickly adapted as a silent movie, and 10 years later it was made into a major film starring Greta Garbo as Anna — her first talking picture.

Daring for its time, Anna Christie is populated by characters O’Neill knew from his years living on the ocean and at Jimmy the Priest’s. Set in a barroom and onboard a ship, Anna Christie reflects O’Neill’s desire to bring new characters and new stories onto the American stage, to fulfill his sense that “the playwright today must dig at the roots of the sickness of today as he feels it.” By bringing Chris Christopherson, his daughter Anna Christie and Irish sailor Mat Burke to the stage, O’Neill asks audiences to see their lives, their struggles and the rough, everyday language they speak as worthy of artistic representation.

In many ways, Anna Christie was a transitional play for O’Neill. After Anna Christie, he went on to write The Emperor Jones and The Hairy Ape, works that moved away from realism toward a more expressionist style. In Anna Christie, O’Neill sets realistic characters against a backdrop charged with mystery and symbolism — the sea, the fog — a constant, ever-present lure and threat. O’Neill would go on to experiment with and draw from different theatrical styles in his career. He wrote work inspired by Greek drama (Mourning Becomes Electra, Desire Under the Elms), plays inspired by his own family life and struggles (Moon for the Misbegotten, Long Day’s Journey Into Night) and a single comedy (Ah, Wilderness!).

Perhaps what made Anna Christie such a struggle for O’Neill to write was his desire to present the vast, unceasing flow of life — as vast as that old devil sea — within the confines of a single evening. He wrote of Anna Christie, “I wanted to have the audience leave with a deep feeling of life flowing on, of the past which is never the past — but always the birth of the future — of a problem solved for the moment but by the very nature of its solution involving new problems.” When Anna Christie draws to a close, therefore, there is no real ending. Instead, said O’Neill, the ending “is merely the comma at the end of a gaudy introductory clause, with the body of the sentence still unwritten. The sea outside — life — waits.”
Anna Christie was written in 1921 at a time when most if not all plays were written for the proscenium stage. When you read the stage directions, everything is conceived toward a framed, impenetrable stage picture. As we translated it for in-the-round, we had to completely redefine each scene and, in doing so, rediscover the essential elements of the play.

The play is very much about the sea and each character’s differing relationship with it, so we are surrounding the characters in evocations of water. The entire floor is made of rusted metal. The cold, shiny metal oxidized with rust evokes water as well as the power of what water can do. The wetness of the world should feel dangerous, ugly, peaceful, beautiful — contradictions that are all reflected in each character’s mind.

We’re using a lot of raw materials: metal sheeting, plastic sheeting, hemp rope, plywood, water. We’re not creating pictorial scenery or illustrations. Instead, we’re using raw materials to create a tactile and almost contemporary environment. We’re also experimenting with dry ice and fog to create a dampness and depth of space. We’re playing with moments where the entire floor is obscured and the characters are almost floating in a glowing fog.

And because this is Classics Up Close, the audience is right there with the actors. You’re inside the scene. In a proscenium theatre, the audience is essentially looking at a picture in a frame. Here, you are inside the picture. So much of the play takes place in really small, claustrophobic spaces, and a lot of the time there are only two or three people on stage. In the round, the audience is the extra character. Sometimes you’re closer to the actors than they are to each other.
I lay on the bowsprit, facing astern, with the water foaming into spume under me, the masts with every sail white in the moonlight, towering high above me. I became drunk with the beauty and singing rhythm of it, and for a moment I lost myself — actually lost my life. I was set free! I dissolved in the sea, became white sails and flying spray, became beauty and rhythm, became moonlight and the ship and the high dim-starred sky!

— Eugene O’Neill, Long Day’s Journey Into Night

All loose things seem to drift down to the sea, and so did I.

CRAIG NOEL (Founding Director) was first appointed director in 1939, directing 15 productions prior to World War II. Since then he directed more than 200 plays of all styles and periods and produced an additional 270 productions. His vision for The Old Globe resulted in the establishment of the Shakespeare Festival and the San Diego Junior Theatre in the late ‘40s, the expansion to two theatres in the ’50s, Globe Educational Tours in the ’70s and Teatro Meta and the Old Globe/University of San Diego MFA program in the ’80s. During the 1940s, Mr. Noel served as dialogue director for the 20th Century Fox Studios and was the former director of the Ernie Pyle Theatre in Tokyo. Described by Variety as the eminence grise of San Diego theatre, Mr. Noel is one of the few San Diegans to have had an entire year (1987) proclaimed in his honor, and to be named one of San Diego’s “Living Treasures.” He was a founder of the California Theatre Council and a former vice president of the California Confederation of the Arts. His numerous honors include The San Diego Union-Tribune list of 25 persons who shaped the city’s history; the Governor’s Award for the Arts; University of Arizona Alumni Association’s Outstanding Citizen, for his contribution to their Fine Arts department; San Diego State University’s Outstanding Alumnus; Conservator of American Arts Award from American Conservatory Theater, the San Diego Press Club Headliner Award; San Diego Gentleman of Distinction Award; and a combined tribute from the Public Arts Advisory Council and the San Diego County Board of Supervisors. Mr. Noel was particularly proud of the following three honors representing education and theatre: Honorary Doctorate of Humane Letters, University of San Diego, Honorary Doctorate in Fine Arts, San Diego State University and the annual Awards for Excellence in Theatre named in his honor by the San Diego Theatre Critics Circle. In 2007, he received the National Medal of Arts — the nation’s highest honor for artistic excellence — in a ceremony at the White House. Craig Noel died on April 3, 2010 at the age of 94.

THE 2012 SHAKESPEARE FESTIVAL
IN REPERTORY JUNE 3 – SEPTEMBER 30

AS YOU LIKE IT
By William Shakespeare
Directed by Adrian Noble

“All the world’s a stage, and all the men and women merely players.”

One of Shakespeare’s most beloved comedies about flirtation, friendship and mistaken identity, AS YOU LIKE IT is a lighthearted look at the fickle and passionate nature of love. Will will and merriment overcome jealousy and deception? How will true love ever find its way, lost in the delightful madness of the forest?

RICHARD III
By William Shakespeare
Directed by Lindsay Posner

“Now is the winter of our discontent.”

RICHARD III is one of the most diabolical and outrageous villains in all of literature. A ruthless Machiavellian, the brilliant and power-hungry lord embarks on a bloody campaign to seize and keep the English crown. Shakespeare paints an unforgettable portrait of obsession, seduction, betrayal and a man who would be king.

INHERIT THE WIND
By Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee
Directed by Adrian Noble

“An idea is a greater monument than a cathedral.”

One of the great American dramas of the 20th century, INHERIT THE WIND is as rousing and relevant today as it was in 1955. Two great lawyers face off in a small-town courtroom with the eyes of an entire nation upon them. The accused? A high school teacher. His crime? Teaching evolution. Loosely based on the real-life Scopes Monkey Trial, INHERIT THE WIND is an edge-of-your-seat legal drama and a riveting look at the age-old conflict between science and faith.

West Coast Premiere
DIVINE RIVALRY
By Michael Kramer with D. S. Moynihan
Directed By Michael Wilson

JULY 7 – AUGUST 12

DIVINE RIVALRY transports audiences to 16th century Florence, where two of the world’s greatest artists, Michelangelo and Leonardo da Vinci, face off in a painting competition orchestrated by political mastermind Niccolò Machiavelli (The Prince). This fascinating real-life contest forms the backdrop for an even greater battle as the leading minds of the Renaissance clash over political gain, personal riches and the immortality of art.

San Diego Premiere
GOD OF CARNAGE
By Yasmina Reza
Translated by Christopher Hampton
Directed by Richard Seer

JULY 27 – SEPTEMBER 2

The Tony Award-winning comedy sensation about parents behaving badly! Alan and Annette meet with Michael and Veronica over their sons' playground squabble, and what starts as a civil discussion between concerned parents quickly morphs into a laugh-out-loud evening of chaos that The New Yorker called, “Ninety minutes of sustained mayhem.” Up close and personal in the intimate Sheryl and Harvey White Theatre where every seat is ringside for this very funny comedy of bad manners. Contains strong language.

This marks the sixth year for The Old Globe’s popular Classics Up Close series. For Classics Up Close, the Globe invites directors to re-imagine major classic plays for our intimate, in-the-round Sheryl and Harvey White Theatre. Classics Up Close takes these plays out from behind the proscenium arch, allowing audiences to experience them in a new way and shedding fresh light on some of the great works of American drama.

Michelle Federer as Laura Wingfield and Mare Winningham as Amanda Wingfield in Tennessee Williams’ The Glass Menagerie, directed by Joe Calarco.

Nisi Sturgis as Honey and Scott Ferrara as Nick in Edward Albee’s Who’s Afraid of Virginia Woolf?, directed by Richard Seer.

James Sutorius as George and Globe Associate Artist Monique Fowler as Martha in Edward Albee’s Who’s Afraid of Virginia Woolf?, directed by Richard Seer.

Old Globe Artistic Director Emeritus Jack O’Brien famously said that you don’t go to the theatre for the first time on your own; someone brings you.

That philosophy played heavily into the Globe’s decision to present student matinee performances of many of our shows. The idea was to bring students to the theatre for the first time in the hopes that they would learn to love theatre through the experience. Students come away from our matinees with their eyes opened to new ideas and possibilities. They are inspired and awed. They want to talk about what they have experienced and what it means to them. That is the power of theatre, and The Old Globe has worked tirelessly to ensure that thousands of students each year are provided the opportunity to see just what we’re about.

A strong student matinee program requires more than just opening the doors. At The Old Globe, our Education Department works hard to ensure that students are provided a strong introduction to the shows they will see, through study guides and classroom learning experiences. Our professional Teaching Artists plan powerful pre-show workshops that are conducted in school classrooms in the days and weeks before students will see the show. These sessions center on the major themes in the plays and how these themes may resonate for students. Through interactive theatre exercises, sharing of production-specific details and open discussion, students explore the show before they see it and are better prepared for the experience when they arrive at the theatre. Our carefully researched study guides provide teachers with the tools they need to present Standards-based lessons in class both before and after students have seen the show. These lessons are designed to provoke discussion and reflection and to bring students to a deeper understanding of the play’s content and of the role of theatre in society.

Tickets to the theatre are an out-of-reach expense for many of the students we serve. School budgets have been slashed to the bone, so paying for a field trip to the theatre is a near-impossibility for most educational institutions. This is where The Old Globe’s donors step up to the plate. They remember that once they were the ones who were invited to see a play for the very first time. They know how theatre has impacted their lives. And they provide the funding for us to give these matinees at absolutely no charge to the schools.

We are proud to continue this amazing program, and we thank our donors for making it possible. For more information about how you can sponsor a free student matinee and become the person responsible for bringing hundreds of students to the theatre for the first time, contact Marilyn McAvoy Bergman at (619) 231-1941 x2309.
The Old Globe's ability to maintain the highest standard of excellence, while keeping ticket prices affordable, is due in large part to the financial support of more than 2,000 individuals, businesses, foundations and government agencies. Please join us in giving a warm thanks and recognition to these leaders who have made tonight and our 629 other performances possible. The Old Globe appreciates the support of those who have stepped into the spotlight.

What is the Craig Noel League?
Founded in 2000 and named for the Globe’s Founding Director, the League is a planned giving society for the Globe comprised of individuals who have included The Old Globe in their estate plans. Through their generosity, these supporters of the Theatre are helping to ensure a long and bright future for San Diego’s leading cultural landmark.

What is a Planned Gift?
Planned giving is simply a way to support The Old Globe through your estate plans by establishing an irrevocable bequest of property, stock or cash; a charitable trust; a living estate; or some other deferred giving instrument. In your estate plans, you have the ability to designate the specific use of the funds given to the Globe, and to help guide your decision, The Old Globe Board of Directors has established specific giving areas that you may choose from, including classical theatre and Shakespeare, education programs and new works.

How do I make a Planned Gift?
Simply call the Globe and schedule an appointment for a confidential meeting, or visit with your estate planner or attorney.

Join us and become part of our active community with a variety of exciting events including an Annual Member Event, “Food for Thought” monthly lunches where you may dine with a Globe artist or attend one of the many Opening Night receptions held throughout the year.

To become a member of the Craig Noel League or to tell us of a gift you have already made, please contact Bridget Cantu Wear, Associate Director of Development, Planned Giving, at (619) 231-1941 x2312 or bcantuwear@TheOldGlobe.org.

ORDERING TICKETS/CHANGE OF ADDRESS
The Old Globe accepts Visa, Discover, MasterCard, or American Express. Phone orders for non-subscribers are subject to a $3.50 per ticket service charge. Ticket exchanges are subject to a service charge for non-subscribers. If you have moved, please notify the Ticket Services Office to update our records. Call (619) 234-5623 during Ticket Services hours, mail your change of address to the Ticket Services Office, or email us at Tickets@TheOldGlobe.org.

UNABLE TO ATTEND?
If you find you are unable to use your tickets, please give them to a friend, or turn them in to the Ticket Services Office and receive a tax receipt for your donation. Tickets must be received by show time.

RESTITUTION
Restrooms are located in the lower lobby of the Old Globe Theatre, the lobby of the White Theatre and adjacent to the Festival Theatre.

SEATING OF LATECOMERS
Although we understand parking is often at a premium, the seating of latecomers is extremely disruptive. Latecomers may be given alternative seating and will be seated at an appropriate interval.

YOUNG CHILDREN
Children five years of age and under will not be admitted to performances.

ELECTRONIC DEVICES AND CAMERAS
Use of recording devices and cameras is not permitted. Please silence all digital watches, pagers and cellular phones prior to entering the theatre.

ASSISTED LISTENING SYSTEM
For the convenience of our hard of hearing and hearing-impaired patrons, The Old Globe has an Assistive Listening System in both the Sheryl and Harvey White Theatre and the Old Globe Theatre. A limited number of the lightweight headsets, as well as induction neck loops, may be obtained from the house manager prior to performances.

PUBLIC TOURS
Go behind the scenes at The Old Globe to learn about the history, three stages, shop and craft areas. Open tours: most Saturdays and Sundays at 10:30am. Groups by reservation. $5 adults; $3 seniors and students. Phone (619) 238-0043 x2145 for information/reservations.

LOST AND FOUND
If you have misplaced a personal item while at the theatre, please contact the Ticket Services Office or Security as soon as possible. If we are unable to locate your item, we'll happily take down your contact information and a description of the item and contact you if it is found. The Old Globe does not assume liability for items left behind on the premises.

Natural Herb Cough Drops — Courtesy of Ricola USA, Inc. — are available upon request. Please ask an usher.
